Etsy Digital Downloads: A File Checklist Before You Publish

Limits, sizes, bundles and matching your listing text

The limits

An Etsy listing for a digital item accepts up to 5 files, each up to 20 MB. Check the current rules on Etsy before you publish, since they can change.

1. Count and weigh your files

Add up files and their sizes first. If you have 40 files, they must be grouped into ZIPs. If one file is larger than 20 MB, split it into parts and include a short guide on how to join them, or deliver a PDF with a download link.

2. Group by what the buyer needs

Sort by format (PDF, JPG, PNG) or by paper size (A4, Letter, A3), not alphabetically. A buyer who wants only one size should not have to open every folder.

3. Add a START HERE page

A one-page PDF telling the buyer what is inside, which file to open, and how to print or edit it prevents most messages asking where the file is.

4. Print sizes: exact pixels per ratio

Common print ratios are 2:3, 3:4, 4:5, 5:7 and 11:14, plus the A series. One artwork cannot fill all of them without cropping, so export each ratio at its exact pixel size and label it clearly.

5. Match the listing text to the files

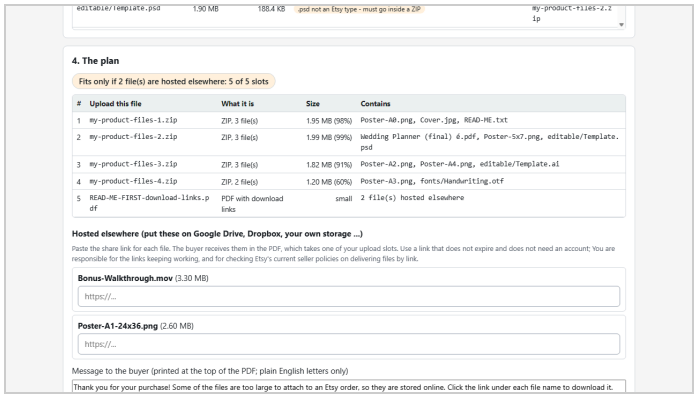

If the description promises 5 sizes in JPG and PDF, the ZIP must contain exactly that. Compare the promised sizes, formats and file counts against what you uploaded; missing or extra files cause bad reviews.

6. Updating an older product

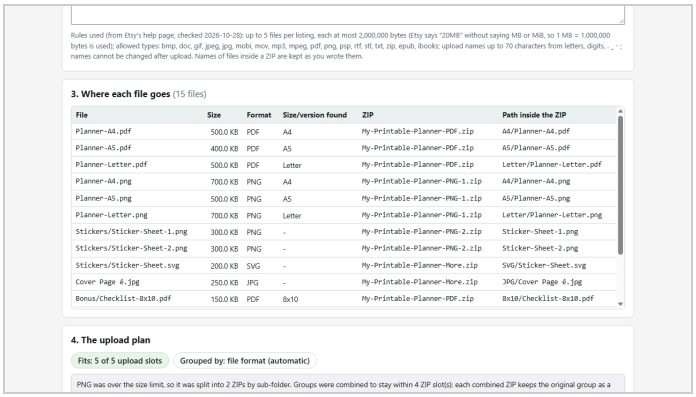

When you release a new edition, compare the old and new package. Old files left in the new ZIP confuse buyers. Write a short changelog for people who already bought it.
